"A Book of Commanding Importance"

Professor John Dewey, of Columbia University, New York, in the July Philosophical Review, writes as follows concerning Mr. Bertrand Russell's recent book Our Knowledge of the External World as a Field for Scientific Method in Philosophy.

"There are many ways of stating the problem of the existence of an external world. I shall make that of Mr. Bertrand Russell the basis of my examinations, as it is set forth in his recent book Our Knowledge of the External World as a Field for Scientific Method in Philosophy. I do this both because his statement is one recently made in a book of commanding importance, and because it seems to me to be a more careful statement than most of those in vogue."

Professor Bernard Bosanquet speaks of the same book, Our Knowledge of the External World as a Field for Scientific Method in Philosophy, as follows:

"This book consists of lectures delivered as Lowell Lectures in Boston, in March and April, 1914. It is so attractive in itself, and its author is so well-known, that I think by this time it may be 'taken as read,' and I may offer some discussion without a preliminary abstract."

It is admitted by scholars, both in England and America, that Bertrand Russell's book, Our Knowledge of the External World as a Field for Scientific Method in Philosophy, is the book of the year.

Note. This book appeared simultaneously in Great Britain and America, brought out by The Open Court Publishing Company of Chicago and London. Unfortunately, by some mistake, the book was published under two titles. In England it is given its full title, while the American edition has the shorter title, Scientific Method in Philosophy. The two editions are identical, and it is a little unfortunate that this mistake was made. The second American edition will be brought out under the same title as the English edition.
